A special kind of puppetry

They're just kids

"Your parents told you not to stare, but don't ignore me either," Mark, a child with cerebal palsy, tells his new-found friend.

Eleven year-old Mark is a very special person for many different reasons. He is in a wheelchair, he has cerebal palsy and — he's a puppet.

His friend, Melody, is also a puppet, and together they share their story and friendship with third- and sixth- grade students throughout the West Valley.

He and Melody visit children with the help of volunteers of the Foothill Chapter of the National Charity League, Inc. The puppeteers give their time and energy in bringing to life these special people in a "Kids on the Block" presentation.

"Kids on the Block," Inc., originated in Washington D.C. to educate children on disabilities through puppetry and to make children more comfortable around disabled people.

Volunteer NCL puppeteers are bringing the program to schoolchildren in Claremont, Upland, Ontario, Montclair and Rancho Cucamonga.

"Kids on the Block" is designed to help non-handicapped students learn to deal with mainstreamed handicapped students.

"The handicapped children were prepared (to enter a regular classroom situation) but the (other) students were not ready for the handicapped," says Barbara Briles. Briles is co-chairwoman, along with Karen Paul, for the NCL project.

Mark and Melody are two of the organization's seven puppets. Cerebal palsy isn't the only handicap addressed by "Kids on the Block" puppets; there are puppets with Down's syndrome, deafness, blindness and learning disabilities.

"A disabled puppet and a non-disabled puppet are presented to a group of children and they discuss in a light-hearted way what it is like to have that particular disability," Briles says.

"After the puppets complete their script, the children are invited to ask questions directly to the disabled puppet," she says.

To be prepared to answer these questions, volunteers studied their scripts and did research on their disability for eight months before the program began.

Each puppet has his or her own life history, with parents and brothers and sisters. "Children ask a lot about family and pets," Paul says.

Questions often asked include: "If I play with you, can I catch what you've got? If I do my mom will get mad at me!" "Are your parents retarded?" "Does it (being retarded) make you sad?" "If you're blind, how come you wear glasses?" "Are only poor people handicapped?"

"The children have had questions but no place to ask them," Paul says. She says the puppeteers also hear a lot of confessions.

The puppets tell their audience they don't like to be labeled cripple or retard. "Retarded means slow to learn," Paul says. "One of the puppets says 'I may be slow to learn. I do learn, but don't call me retard.'"

"They try to put the non-handicapped child at ease by saying, 'It's OK to walk up and say hi,'" she says.

"They're really just people; they like to have friends," Briles says.

Several service groups helped purchase the puppets, with their histories and cassette training tapes. Average cost for one puppet is $500. Mark's wheelchair is an exact replica of an adult-size chair and came with special tools to repair and maintain it.

The puppeteers only address one disability at each assembly but will return to the school with a different handicapped puppet if requested.

The presentations are effective, according to Richard Riley, principal of Sierra Vista School in Upland. "It's important to inform other people about the handicapped and make them aware as well as increase their level of sensitivity to them," he says.

"They (NCL puppeteers) bring their play and present it in such a way that it's made real to the students," he says. "Other students have a chance to share physical disabilities they or their best friends have and talk about being more patient with them."

Riley says the focal point of the presentation is information and understanding.

ds on the block

Barbara Hester brings Mark's story of living with his handicap to life for three third grade classes at Valencia Elementary School. Some of the puppets' handicaps are visible such as Mark, with cerebral palsy and Renaldo who is blind; other problems are not as easily seen — Jennifer has a learning disability, Mandy is deaf and Ellen Jane has Down Syndrome. Melody (above) teams with Mark in the skit.

He says the program explains about handicapped children's problems and feelings and took pressure off handicapped students and those dealing with them. "I think it may have made them (handicapped students) feel a little more important."

"One of the mothers making the presentation shared she was handicapped with a hearing loss," Riley says. "She made it (the presentation) real and told (students) how she felt growing up, things that discouraged her and how she overcame her problem."

"Now she is trying to make education more meaningful for other students effected by handicaps," he says.

Upland beauty hopes she's the fairest of all

By Terri Tirella

Miss Southern California Belle, Cyndie Donovan of Upland, will cross the Atlantic for her next competition.

She hopes to be named the "fairest of the fair" in a contest planned in Tipperary, Ireland.

"The Pride of Tipperary (an annual festival) has been held for 21 years," said Donovan's chaperone Mary DeWald. "This is the first time they have invited a foreign queen (to the beauty competition) and they are hoping to make it international from now on."

Other areas will be represented by beauty pageant winners including Miss New York, Miss Netherlands and Miss London.

DeWald heard about the queen exchange program from her sister-in-law who does choreography for Irish television and works with the festival organization committee.

"We have to pay our fare over and they will host us for seven days," she said.

The pair will try to squeeze a little more sightseeing into their trip if they can.

For DeWald, going to Tipperary will be going home. She grew up in there and looks forward to visiting family and friends. DeWald is pageant coordinator for the Miss Southern Belle pageants.

Women from all over Ireland will compete for the many prizes at the Tipperary pageant. Prizes include 500 pounds (about $1,300 according to DeWald), an opportunity to be in a Clairol hair commercial, a scholarship and a clock.

"They (the Irish pageant coordinators) will show the girls the sights in South Ireland and the girls will get to meet the mayor, and possibly the president of Ireland if his schedule permits," DeWald said.

The pageant will be televised on Irish television and will model Irish clothes designs in a fashion show. Other festival activities are traditional Irish step dancing, a parade and a coronation ball.

DeWald said she and Donovan do not know what kind of competition or what criteria by which the contestants will be judged.

The Miss Southern California Belle pageant is based heavily on personal interviews, personality and scholastic achievement, according to DeWald. The pageant is held annually at Chaffey Community College.

Appropriately, Donovan found out about the pageant on St. Patrick's Day.

Donovan will bring an Olympic memento as well as greetings from the city of Upland to the Tipperary contestants and officials. She will also bring video tapes from the Miss Southern California Belle pageant for the Irish lasses to view.

"I want to make friends with the girls and sightsee," Donovan said. "I'm going to play tourist, I have my address book ready for postcards."

New assistant principal overlooks high school fun

By Josie Garza

Overseeing the "fun" aspects of high school is a full-time occupation for Remi Tremblay, Etiwanda High School's new assistant principal of activities.

Tremblay, who will assume his new post July 2, said he enjoys working with students in planning rallies, class competitions and striving to encourage school spirit.

At the same time, the 42-year-old Pomona resident said, he also applied for the position to advance himself in his profession.

For the past 13 years, Tremblay has worked at Bonita High School in La Verne.

While at Bonita, the Rhode Island native worked his way up from teacher and varsity basketball coach to the school's director of activities.

"This year, I just made up my mind it was time to move on. The Etiwanda position was very attractive. It was the next step, basically. I'll be doing the same type of things," he explained.

Clinching a non-disciplinary position was of particular importance to him.

Tremblay said he wanted to become an assistant principal but he wanted the position without having to administer negative reinforcement.

The Etiwanda position will allow him to do just that.

Having to work as what he calls a "dean of discipline" would be a "terrible" experience for him.

"It's a no-win situation. You deal with 10-15 percent of the student body that doesn't want to be in school. You never deal with the good kids because they don't get to walk in the office. I relate it to being a police officer. It's just a very depressing job. It just takes a very special person to handle that kind of position. Basically, it's all negative reinforcement."

Working as an assistant principal of activities will allow Tremblay to continue to enjoy his role as an educator.

"You're the good guy instead of the bad guy. You work with the good kids and the class officers. You provide fun activities for students such as dances and assembly programs.

He said he thinks the job will challenge him by providing an opportunity to set traditions and get school spirit going while helping students to get involved and interested in school.

Summer vacations need planning to be successful

Going on a summer vacation can be a dream come true — or an absolute nightmare. It all depends on how well you prepare for the trip, according to the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Before leaving, the Auto Club advises to:

- Give your car a tune-up if this hasn't been done recently. Also, check the tires, brakes, wipers, wheel alignment, exhaust and cooling systems (especially if you'll be towing a trailer).
- Pack some snack foods that are nutritious and will keep for several hours. Don't forget to take along napkins or pre-moistened towelettes and a small first-aid kit.
- Caution youngsters about the dangers of distracting the driver. Discuss and plan ways to keep them occupied. One recent study showed that a significant number of automobile accidents occur when children distract the driver.

When planning your trip, also remember to:

- Make sure each passenger uses a seat belt and stays seated. In the event of an accident, serious injuries can be sustained by those who aren't wearing safety belts.

California law requires that all infants and small children under four years of age, or weighing less than 40 pounds, be properly placed in a child restraint device that meets federal standards when traveling in their parents' own vehicle.

- Stay fresh during long-distance drives by making frequent stops. Schedule a food or rest break every two hours or 100 miles, whichever comes first. Plan a roadside picnic as a special treat.

House wine keeps profits peaking

By Dan Berger
Copley News Service

The Geyser Peak Winery of California's northern Sonoma County has been a paradox.

Over the last 20 years, as the wine industry grew from a sleepy back-country cottage industry into one with a worldwide impact, Geyser Peak found a niche that permitted it to grow, too: house wine.

The winery, then owned by Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co., was one of the pioneers of bag-in-a-box wine, in which mediocre wine was put inside a four-liter or 18-liter pouch, which was inserted into a cardboard box and dispensed from a spout.

Geyser Peak's version — called Summit — wasn't very good. It came from grapes grown in California's central San Joaquin Valley, and was fairly sweet. But it was cheap, and restaurateurs liked Summit as their house wine.

Geyser Peak thus grew into a multimillion-case a year winery. Yet through the 1970s, Geyser Peak's premium wines never improved. Most of the wines were non-distinct and innocuous, and despite modest prices, the image of the Geyser Peak name sank into that morass reserved for wines you only bought if there was nothing else to choose from.

Then long-time Sonoma County resident and mortgage banker Henry F. Trione bought the winery in November 1982 and immediately began to make changes.

Today, 18 months after its change of ownership, Geyser Peak Winery has not yet moved into the premium class, but considering its history, the strides Trione has made are dramatic, and proof he intends to produce wines of the highest quality.

It is clear, too, that at some time within the next year or two, the Geyser Peak name will begin to shed its past image. Though some of the Geyser Peak wines remain uninteresting, the signs are there for a rapid upturn.

The first hint of quality I got in this line came from, of all wines, a 1983 Geyser Peak Rose of Cabernet Sauvignon, which sells for $4, less at discounters.

This pale pink wine is truly superior. It reminds me of the superb Rose of Cabernet that Simi Winery has been famous for over the years. Geyser Peak's is drier than most such pink wines (just .5 percent residual sugar), and has a superb mouth-feel that actually does match well with certain foods.

Another Geyser Peak winner is a 1980 Cabernet Sauvignon ($6.50). It offers a lean, olive aroma and a soft, pleasing taste. I doubt this wine will age very well, but for near-term consumption it's extremely nice.

Trione's best move so far has been to create a new name for the company's premium line of wines, bearing his name. These are better quality than the typical Geyser Peak offerings of the past — even though some of the early releases were made before Trione bought the winery.

He was able to do this by going through the winery and tasting all the barrels, and choosing the best for the wines that would be called Trione.

The 1980 Trione Cabernet Sauvignon ($9) is a prototype "old style" California Cabernet. It is not intensely varietal, but has an enjoyable roasted coffee bean, woody aroma, and a silky, rich taste. Moderate alcohol gives it a supple finish.

The 1980 Trione Merlot ($9) is extremely well made, has a more typical varietal aroma than the Cabernet, and is a gem of moderation.

A Far East spice aroma is the first thing I detected in the 1982 Trione Chardonnay ($9), which was aged in American oak and has a buttery quality. The wine is in balance, however, and a nice first effort at making something special.

(The above wine would have been aged in French oak, which yields a more characteristic aroma, but in late 1982, just days after Trione bought winery, he ordered French oak. The barrels didn't arrive before it was time to put the Chardonnay in barrel, so American oak was used.)

A 1981 Trione Blanc de Noirs sparkling wine ($10) offers quality for the money.

Long vaults back to form

Following a coaching change earlier this year, many thought the track and field program at Chaffey College was all but done.

Not so. The small Panther squad competed throughout the season and even had a performer in last weekend's state finals at Bakersfield.

That's where the Cinderella finish ended. Pole vaulter Tony Long, second in the Southern California qualifying meet, failed to clear the opening height to close the season on a disappointing note.

"It may be disappointing to Tony, but considering what we went through, it was a heck of a season," said Chaffey College track coach John Smickrack.

"Tony had come through in big meets previously for us," said Smickrack, named to the Chaffey post in January. "He wasn't able to get his steps down at Bakersfield and that ended his chances."

Long, the former Upland High School pole vaulting standout, had cleared 15 feet in qualifying second at the SoCal meet at Cerritos College the week before.

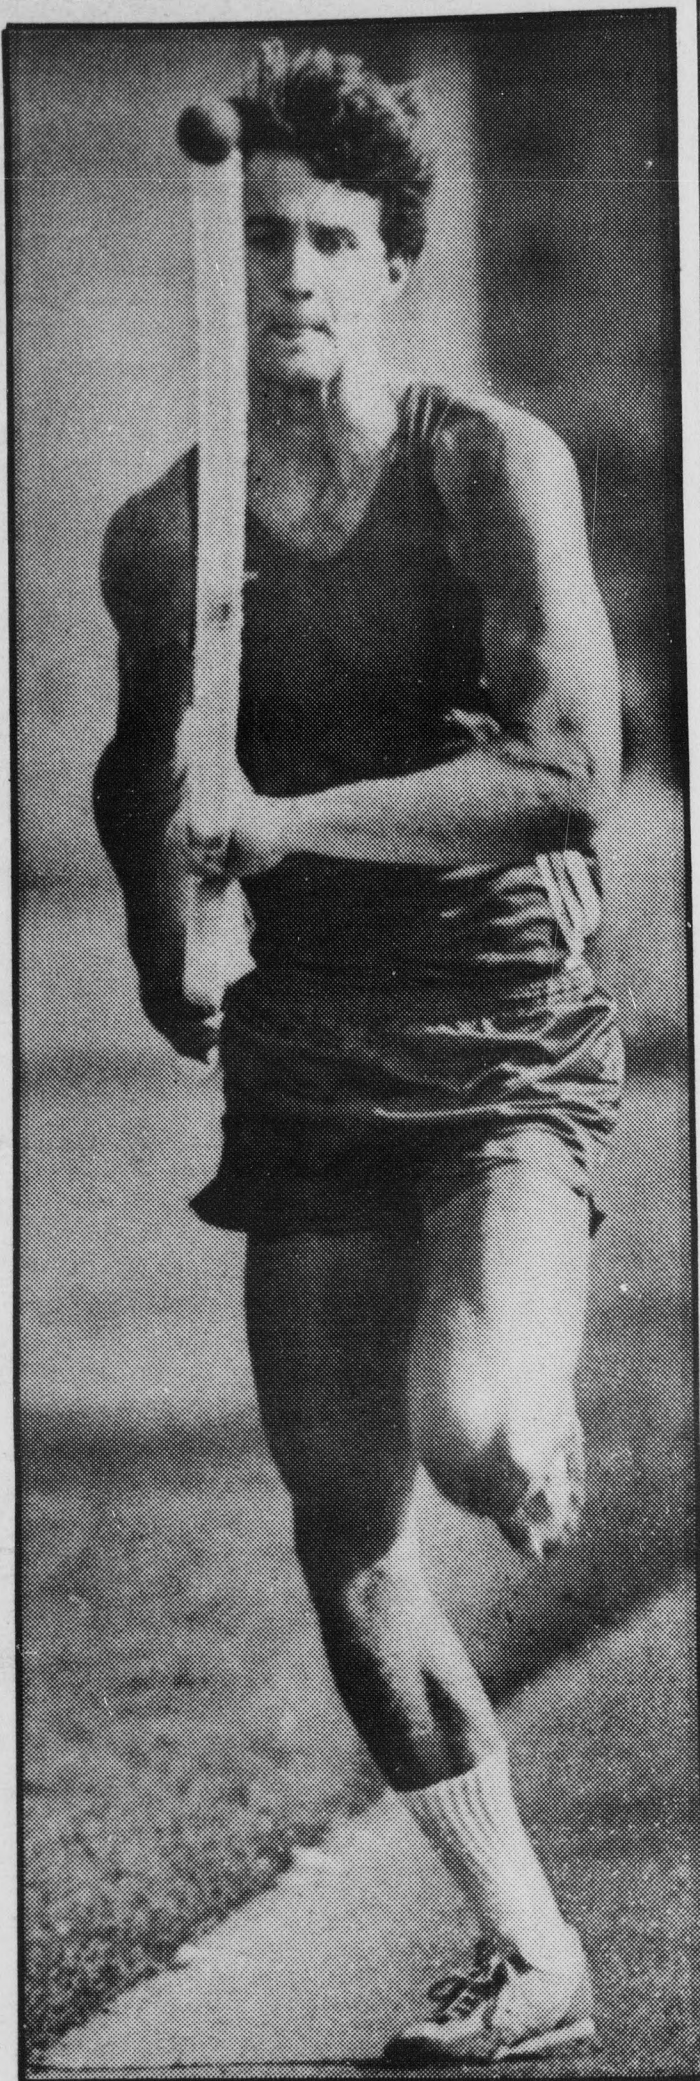

Long, whose vault of 15-3 in 1979 remains the Baseline League record, made a successful comeback to track after being idle for two years.

Following his days at Upland, Long competed for one season at Mt. San Antonio College, then left school to go on a two-year mission to Indiana for the Church of Latter Day Saints.

He returned to college at Chaffey the last quarter of 1983, too late to resume vaulting, but decided to start again the past spring.

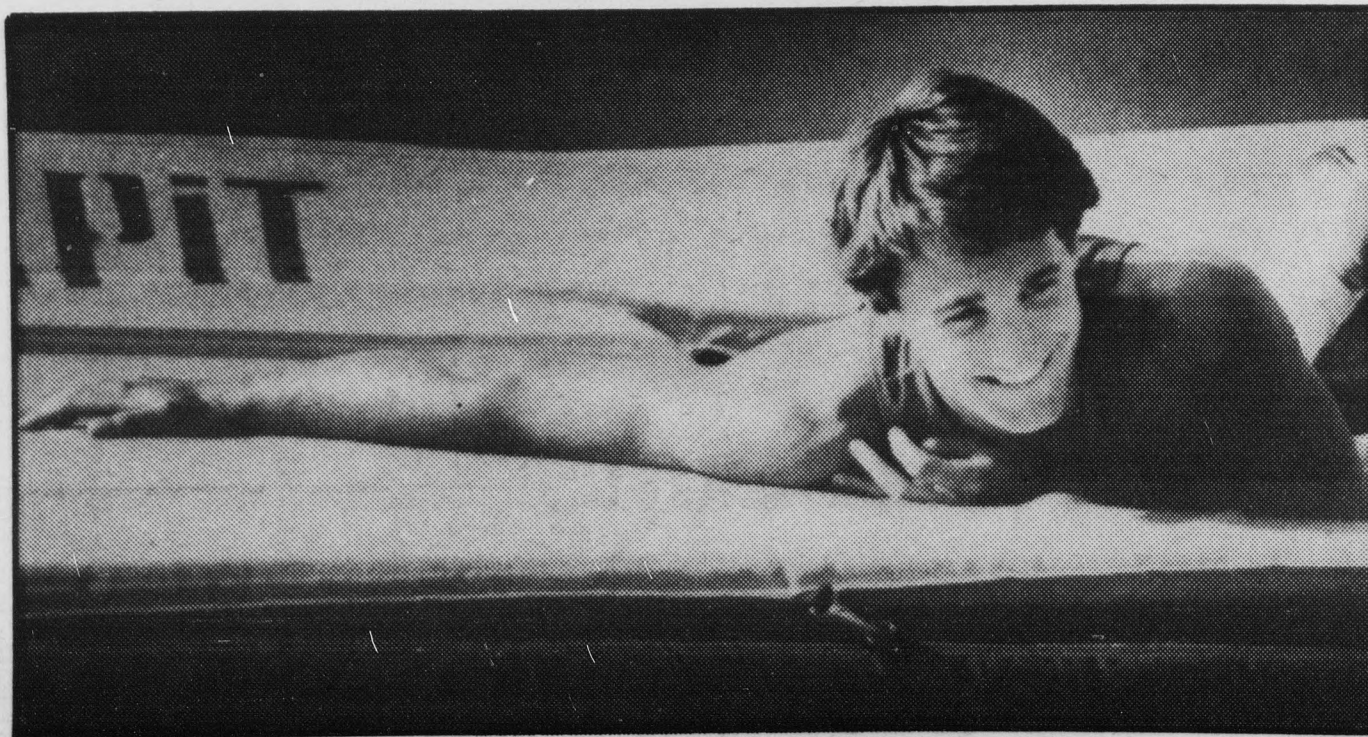

Long, 22, was coached by former Upland coach Don Salyers and Smickrack.

Long is unsure of his future plans. He is pondering a career in chiropractics but is also considering attending Long Beach State, San Diego State or Brigham Young University in order that he might continue collegiate pole vaulting.

Kathy Frey

It was a good year for vaulter Tony Long ...

he was able to enjoy the thrill of winning a conference title in his speciality.

Brueckner among cage selections

By Charles Bentley

Upland High School senior Drew Brueckner has been selected to the North squad for this year's 11th Annual Pomona Valley High School All Star Basketball Game.

Brueckner, a 6-0 guard that averaged 13 points and six assists last season for the Highlanders, has already accepted a scholarship to the University of Denver.

Kent Bechler of Glendora High School, this year's coach of the North unit, feels that his squad should be very strong, especially at the guard position.

"I know we'll be competitive," said Bechler. "We've got good size, excellent speed and some really fine guards. I think we'll be strong in every aspect of the game."

Other players on this year's all-star rosters include, on the North, Chris Cunningham (Bonita), Rusty Mineer (Bonita), Mike Dyer (Charter Oak), Daren Hengesbach (Claremont), Todd Wessel (Damien), Brian Hunt (Glendora), Bill Des Rochers (Glendora), Rick Walker (Glendora), Joe Collins (Pomona) and Mitch Burley (Alta Loma).

Burley's role is questionable at this point, the Braves' All CIF first team player having injured his knee in practice last week.

The South squad includes Rodney Thomas (Chaffey), Bryan Bennett (Chino), Rodney Jones (Diamond Bar), Darren Brooks (Don Lugo), Marvin Mattox (Garey), Essie Bell (Garey), Daren Lyles (Montclair), Michael Thornton (Montclair), John Martin (Nogales), Greg Elias (Nogales), Tyrone Cox (Ontario), and B.J. Schoneveld (Ontario Christian).

Head coach for the South squad this year is Johnny Stevenson of Rowland High School, Rowland Heights.

Sponsored by the La Verne Rotary Club, this year's game is slated for a 7:30 p.m. tipoff June 16 at ULV. Tickets are available from La Verne Rotary Club members or can be purchased at the door.

Another honor for Warner

Bonny Warner, whose 15th-place finish in the women's luge at the 1984 Winter Olympics was the best American performance ever in the event, will receive the Southland Olympia Award in a ceremony Tuesday at Stanford University.

Warner, a native of Mt. Baldy who is captain of the Stanford field hockey team, will be awarded a distinctive museum-piece reproduction of a Greek amphora given to amateur athletes in Ancient Greece.

The junior film/broadcasting major was in eighth position in the luge when a crash dropped her into 15th position at the Winter Games in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia.

Recent winners of the Olympia Award, which is voted on by a panel of former world and Olympic greats, include Alberto Salazar, Mary Decker, Gerg Louganis, Bart Conner, Rowdy Gaines, Carl Lewis, Evelyn Ashford, Scott Hamilton and Phil and Steve Mahre.

PETS

By R.G. Elmore, D.V.M.
Copley News Service

Q. Are over-the-counter medications for worms in dogs usually adequate for worm control? Is it really important to have your dog or cat examined by a veterinarian before administering worm medicine?

I am sure it is a lot cheaper to buy worm medications at the grocery store or the farm store and administer them at home.

A. The drugs sold over-the-counter, that is without a prescription, at grocery stores or farm stores for deworming pets, are generally effective against the particular types of worms for which they are advertised. However, your pet may have types of worms for which the medications are ineffective.

Your veterinarian can determine exactly which worms and other internal parasites your pet has by examining fresh stool samples and blood samples. Once the parasites have been accurately identified, your veterinarian can prescribe or administer the most efficacious and safe drug available.

There are many reports of animals being killed each year by improper deworming medications. Sick or debilitated animals, animals with fever, or animals that are constipated should not be given deworming medications. If you are administering deworming drugs at home it is important to follow your veterinarian's directions exactly.

The dosages for most dewormers are based on body weight of the pet. Therefore your should weigh your pet as accurately as possible. Ordinary bathroom scales are usually accurate enough. You can obtain your pet's weight by first weighing yourself, and then weighing yourself while you are holding your pet. Of course, the difference between the two weights is your pet's weight.

Some deworming medications require fasting before or after giving the medication. It is important that directions regarding fasting be followed exactly. Some deworming medications should not be given to pregnant animals. Some dewormers should not be given if the pet has been vaccinated recently or is taking other medications.

If you desire to use over-the-counter deworming medications you should at least consult your veterinarian first regarding any particular recommendations he has regarding your pet.

Internal and external parasites can usually be prevented by good-quality regular sanitation.

Pursuing Knowledge in a game of trivia

From the basic "How many reindeer pull Santa's sleigh?" to the more obscure, like "Under what section of the Dewey decimal system will you find biographies?" questions at the second annual West End Scholarship Bowl kept students on their toes.

Seventh and eighth graders from eight local schools participated in the "double elimination" competition held at Alta Loma Junior High School last week.

The five members of each team had been selected at their schools previously. The 40 players represented 7,000 students, said Grace Longson, assistant principal at Alta Loma.

Participants from Pioneer Junior High School in Upland went home with the trophy.

Other schools participating were Ontario's De Anza and Imperial Junior highs and Ontario Christian Elementary, Cucamonga Intermediate in Rancho Cucamonga, Magnolia Junior High in Chino and Chaparral Junior High in Diamond Bar.

When the bowl began, with Magnolia and Chaparral schools competing, the audience was small. But in the midst of the fourth game, Alta Loma students competing against Ontario Christian gained a psychological boost — and more nervousness — when half the school trooped in to watch.

Bing Kongmebhol, an Alta Loma team member, said that when team members' fellow students came in, "at first I'm sure everyone was nervous but after awhile it just went away."

The Alta Loma students soon began cooking with questions like: the major river separating Mexico from Texas, the latitude of the North Pole, the ingredient that causes bread to rise, the most famous Pony Express rider, the meaning of the word

"pram," and the site of the 1936 Olympic Games.

(The answers, by the way are: Rio Grande, 90 degrees north, yeast, Buffalo Bill, a baby carriage and Berlin. As for the first two questions, biographies are found under the number 921 and, leaving out Rudolph, there are eight reindeer.)

Alta Loma Principal James Dyer read the questions, along with Judy Suter and Vickee Duncan, who had served as Alta Loma student advisors. Players rang buzzers to be called upon for answers.

The Alta Loma team members were Angela Roth, Chris Gutierrez, Geoff Enns, Paula Lambert and Kongmebhol.

The victorious Pioneer team members were Kevin Koldzieg, Robert Lee, Brian Hawks, Brian Randall and Wendy McCallum. □

Clockwise from far left members of the Cucamonga Junior High School team do what's necessary to come up with an answer to a mathematics question. Alta Loma Junior High School's Principal James Dyer reads the questions while student advisor Vickee Duncan waits to see which team rings their buzzer first. Student helpers keep score while three teachers judge the event. The contestants sit on center stage while the questions are fired upon them.

Post office offers public two services

The public won't lose touch or lose time during the summer months when they take advantage of two conveniences offered by the Postal Service to people on the go, Postmaster David Jordan of Upland said.

"People on the run can save time when they use Self-Service Postal Centers located in many post office and shopping areas," he said. "The centers offer many postal supplies and services for no extra charge at the touch of a button."

Customers can mail letters and packages, the postmaster said, and buy stamps, postal cards and stamped envelopes from these centers.

A Self-Service Postal Center is located at Upland Post Office, 333 E. Arrow Highway.

"A second tip is that people on the move can make the change more easily when they use a free change-of-address kit available at local post offices," the postmaster said. "The kit's handy postcards can be used to notify the post office, friends, business correspondents and magazines of your new address so mail will find you in your new home."

"Last year the Postal Service forwarded 45 million pieces of mail," Jordan said. "You can avoid paying forwarding charges, and possible delays in getting your mail, by telling everyone your new address a month before you move."

"We want to help our customers get our best," he added. "And these two services can give you more time to enjoy the summer months ahead."

Do you remember standing outdoors, talking with a group of rural folks and have someone ask innocently — "Which way's the wind blowing?" Somebody in that group of conversationalists is certain to stick a finger in his mouth, hold the finger up in the air, and supply the answer to the question.

The theory behind this bit of homespun weather reporting is that part of the wet finger will feel colder because the wind is blowing against it. Incidentally, for this system to work at all, the reporter needs to have a pretty good idea where the points of the compass are located.

Personally, I never really and a great deal of trust in this type of home-grown meteorology. I always felt that watching a flag or wash on the line or listening to the radio was a whole lot more accurate.

Anyway, when it comes to judging which way the wind is blowing in the camera industry, I'm not certain the marketing people have progressed much beyond the science of finger wetting. A few weeks ago, three major camera companies held flag-waving press conferences to introduce new equipment. Canon, Nikon and Ricoh all brought brand new programmable 35mm cameras to the consumer marketplace, cameras that were prime examples of just how much electronically oriented camera designers can do when they get serious.

I didn't get to see the Canon or Nikon presentations (since I wasn't invited) but I did get to attend the Ricoh press conference. So I'm going to give you some background on Ricoh's new camera — and while it's reputed to be more advanced than its two competitors, you'll at least begin to get some idea of just what the industry is leading us to.

Always somewhere in the back of my mind, as I hold my wet finger in the air, is the thought that maybe the wind I'm feeling isn't really a natural wind but artificially induced gusts designed to confuse my instincts. My point is that I've never been totally convinced that the average picture taker really wants (or needs) all those fancy electronic bells and whistles.

A case in point: Sitting

Jazz band blows its own horn

Musicians at Upland's Pioneer Junior High are all jazzed up over accomplishments of this year's award-winning jazz band.

Pioneer Junior High's Jazz Band has competed in five festivals this year, receiving two first place awards, two seconds and one third.

"We placed in all festivals we went to," said Craig Olson, band director.

The band is composed of eighth graders, although one seventh grader is playing with the group now. "We have competed against as many as 12 bands," Olson said.

"This is a middle school, most junior highs also include ninth graders (in their bands)."

Olson has been director at Pioneer for six years. The first jazz band emerged five years ago. "Being in jazz band prepares students for high school music and different composers."

The band this year was invited to play at Disneyland in the Carnation Gardens bandshell.

to 42 festivals during the last five years. "In our first festival we were last, we have never not placed since," Olson said.

Because of its outstanding competition record, the band has a reputation as a competitor to be reckoned with a festival contests. "We're always one of the best," Olson said.

Instruments include five saxophones, four trombones, five trumpets, a guitar and rhythm section. There are 18 band members.

"We usually meet four days a week, before and after school," Olson said. The jazz band is a volunteer organization.

"We start with the basics, swing rhythm, a jazz rhythm, learn different styles and nuances and also learn how to improvise," Olson said.

He said he starts the musicians out with basic blues scales in different keys to practice improvising. "Some solos I write for them and some they improvise, it depends on how advanced they are," Olson said.

Olson said not many junior high schools have jazz bands. Both Upland Junior High and Pioneer compete at that level.

Olson credits the school district and its excellent music program. "It's so hard to teach the basic fundamentals of playing. One reason Upland has two junior high jazz bands is the district is so strong, the kids get the fundamentals down, not only of concert music but other music as well," he said.

He said community support is another reason the bands are so successful.

Demanding attendance or having strict discipline isn't a problem for jazz band. "When I take them to a festival, they have a sense of purpose and accomplish success," Olson said. "They know it wasn't handed to them, they worked for it. It gives them a sense of pride and they live up to that."

Rehearsals are productive because the musicians concentrate on the task at hand, Olson said. "They know what they do in rehearsal is what they'll do at festival."

Students choose to join the jazz band for different reasons, Olson said. "Some want to get to be better musicians, some like winning festivals and some enjoy playing music."

Pioneer Junior High Jazz Band will perform in the Spring Concert May 31. The group also has been invited to perform at Upland High School's Jazz Night, June 4. □ next to me at the Ricoh press conference was Lydia Wolfman. Now anyone in the camera marketing business knows and respects the Wolfman Report — published annually, it tells the marketing status of the U.S. camera industry.

Mrs. Wolfman was about to leave on a trip — now here's a lady that probably could have access to any camera she wanted, and even though we were surrounded by brand-new Ricoh XR-P multi-program models, she selected Ricoh's FF-3AF simple-to-use auto focus camera to take with her.

I strongly suspect that Lydia Wolfman's choice of cameras was indicative of most people who want to take pictures as a sometimes thing — most of these folks just don't want to fuss with all those little dials, buttons and levers.

The new Ricoh, however, is a camera you need to see to believe. But the person who buys one will need to be reasonably serious about photography. First of all, there are three program modes — "PD" for when great depth of field is required; "P" for most normal picture taking situations; and "PA" when high shutter speeds are required to stop action.

In addition, you can select either shutter priority, aperture priority or manual modes. Then there's an automatic through-the-lens mode that engages just by hooking up the Ricoh 300P flash unit. On top of all that, the XR-P and the 300-P strobe team up to provide automatic flash fill with a 2:1 light ratio.

Then, as if that weren't enough, the engineers added TV modes that allow photographs to be taken directly from American or European television sets (and even VCRs) without interference from scanning lines.

And for you lefties who have always complained that camera designers invariably appear to be right handed, this new Ricoh XR-P comes with an "extra shutter" release that can be activated with your left hand.

Additionally, there's an exposure compensation dial, plus an exposure memory lock that lets the photographer take a close-up meter reading, lock in the results, then move back to frame and take the picture — no problem, the camera remembers the locked-in exposure.

Darts group hits bull's-eye in fund raising

By Terri Tirella

The Foothill Dart Association (FDA), Claremont Ice Company and Pomona's Eagle Lodge hit the bull's-eye when they combined efforts to raise more than $1,000 for West San Bernardino Special Olympics athletes.

The three groups held a Special Olympics Dart Tournament, raising funds to sponsor seven children through the competition. Each child needed $150 to compete.

"The cost allows for the uniforms, the transportation to area and state games (in Berkeley), (the expense of) staying there, and the regular training and equipment used," Evaun Stevenson said. Stevenson is area coordinator for the West San Bernardino Special Olympics.

Sixty-three of the local athletes will attend the state games over the June 22 weekend.

"Athletes are selected more on participation than on winning," Stevenson said.

She said athletes who didn't go to regional events last year or the year before are considered for sponsorship first.

"They're motto is 'let me win or, if not, let me be brave in the attempt,'" Stevenson said.

"Usually a club will decide to sponsor one child. This is the first time anyone has done a whole competition just for Special Olympics," she said.

Toad Fraley, owner of the Claremont Ice Company, said he and Joe Diaz, Jr., president of FDA, "got to talking about a way to put a (fund-raising) competition into use (for children)."

Joe Diaz and Toad Fraley both get the point about the popularity of darts.

Fraley has been active in raising funds for youth organizations for 16 years and was looking for a group as a philanthropic project. Since the FDA sponsored a child in the Special Olympics the previous year, that seemed the natural selection.

Dart associations throughout Southern California were invited to attend the fund-raising competition. Between 75 and 100 people turned out to try their skills.

"I furnished the food for free and various (dart) clubs donated door prizes," Fraley said. "Every single cent went to the Special Olympics."

R & J Dart Supply furnished portable walls for the shoot. Donations were also received from Michelob beer and the Foothill Beverage Association. "They were very generous," Fraley said.

Fraley, a member of FDA, said "We have every intention of having this (fund raiser) every year."
